CHAPTER 1 INTRODUCTION

The 1990 Demographic Indicators Report provides demographic information for Edmonton. The main source is the 1990 Civic Census which was done during March and April, 1990. In addition, it provides population forecasts for Edmonton and sub-areas of Edmonton. Much of the information is provided for the 151 census tracts that comprise the area of the City of Edmonton.

A map of the census tracts is attached. Each census tract is comprised of one or more enumeration areas. Table 1.1 provides information on population by age and sex in the 663 enumeration areas; while Table 1.2 provides population information in all census tracts.

This report is divided into eight chapters, most of which provide a different demographic topic from the census.

CHAPTER 2 POPULATION AND HOUSEHOLDS

This chapter, in Table 2.1, provides data on population and households for Edmonton's 151 census tracts. Table 2.2 provides data on population by five-year age groups for Edmonton since 1978.

Findings:

- After decreasing since the 1960s, Edmonton's household size increased in 1990 to 2.55. This increase probably occurred as a result of the combined effects of economic recession and a tighter apartment rental market which increased the costs of establishing a household.

- The household growth rate between 1989 and 1990 was lower than the population growth rate. This is in contrast to the 1970s and 1980s when the household growth rate increased faster than the population growth rate.

- The trend towards decreasing household size will probably resume in the 1990s with continuing increases in the growth rate of non-family households and a gradually increasing divorce rate.

- The 1990 census recorded an increase in the population of Edmonton's inner city. This is in contrast to previous censuses which indicated continuing population declines. However, this increase is probably due largely to a change in the way the census was administered. Table 2.3 lists the fastest growing neighbourhoods between 1989 and 1990. Four of the ten are inner-city neighbourhoods. A list of the ten fastest declining neighbourhoods is presented in Table 2.4.

CHAPTER 3 POPULATION BY LENGTH OF RESIDENCE

The length of time that people live at the same address is a measure of residential stability. Table 4.1 provides, for each census tract, the length of time that people have lived at their current address. For persons who have lived less than one year at their address, their former area of residence is given. Table 4.2 provides several years of data for persons living less than one year at their current address.

Findings:

- Twenty-one percent of the population had lived at their 1990 address less than one year. Most of these people moved from elsewhere in Edmonton.

Only 1% of Edmonton's population moved from outside Edmonton within the year.

- In 1983, a larger share (23%) of the population had lived less than one year at their current address. Also a larger share (5% of Edmonton's population), moved from outside Edmonton during the year.

CHAPTER 4 POPULATION BY OCCUPATIONAL STATUS

Table 5.1 shows the geographic distribution by occupational status in each of Edmonton's 151 census tracts. The occupation categories are different from those identified in Statistics Canada's Standard Industrial Code.

The census provides only general occupational status categories. The census does have a classification for unemployment. The unemployment rate for each census tract or areas can be obtained by using the census. They give an indication of the distribution of unemployment rates within Edmonton. Edmonton's highest unemployment rates are concentrated in inner-city areas in Edmonton's north side.

CHAPTER 5 POPULATION BY MARITAL STATUS AND SEX

The civic census provides information on marital status. However, unlike the Federal Census of Canada, the martial status information in the civic census is provided on a voluntary basis and is open to bias.

Table 5.1 provides data for males and females is five categories: single, married, divorced, widowed and other.

Findings

- Nearly every census tract contains more divorced females than males. This may indicate that more divorced males remarry than do divorced females. This finding is consistent with the U.S. experience.[1]

- There are more widowed females in every census tract, implying that females have longer life expectancy than males.

CHAPTER 6 DWELLINGS BY SIZE AND TYPE AND HOUSEHOLDS BY TENURE TYPE, 1990

Table 7.1 provides data for each census tract, on the number of dwelling units by type. It also provides the number of households that own their accommodation and the number of households that rent accommodation.

Findings:

- Of the 237,214 households in Edmonton, 50% own their accommodation and 50% rent accommodation. This is only a slight change from 1981 when 49% owned and 51% rented.
- The areas with the highest percentage of households that rent accommodation are the downtown (93%), the downtown fringe (86%) and the University area (81%).
- The areas with the highest percentage of households that own their accommodation are Riverbend (74%), Capilano (66%), Castle Downs (66%) and Mill Woods (63%).

CHAPTER 8 POPULATION PROJECTIONS FOR EDMONTON AND SUBAREA

This chapter contains a set of population projections for Edmonton which are presented in Table 9.1. The projections present males and females by five-year age groups.

These projections are the official City of Edmonton forecasts until February 1992, when a new projection will be developed. Table 9.2 presents a set of population forecasts for 31 sub-areas of Edmonton. Edmonton's age structure in 2004 is forecast to differ only slightly from that of 1991.

Findings

- The population aged 65+ will increase from 8.9% in 1991 to 10.2% in 2004.
- The population aged less than 20 will remain unchanged at 27%.
- The general fertility rate is forecasted to decline slowly from 30 per 1,000 population in 1991 to 29 per 1,000 population in 2004.
